2.1 A brief overview of the institution under evaluation

The Faculty of Philology was established on 22 December 1988 in Prishtina, pursuant to the Law No. 011-83/88 on the Establishment of the Faculty of Philology in Prishtina. The court decision on registration is No. 1050 and dated 09.12.1988, while the decision number of the District Commercial Court in Prishtina is 861/88.

The Faculty of Philology has a notable tradition and experience. The Department of Albanian language and literature, established in the academic year 1960/61 within the Faculty of Philosophy of Prishtina, gives meaning and significance to the history of higher education in Kosovo in the Albanian language, in its very distinct segments.

The Department of Serbo-Croatian Language and Yugoslav Literature was opened by the Faculty of Philology departments in the same year. A year later, in 1961/62, the Department of English Language and Literature and the Department of Russian Language and Literature were also opened. Next, the Department of French language and literature was opened in 1971, with Oriental Studies Department following in 1973. With the Statute of 1973, the Faculty shifted its operations through Departments (teaching bodies were abolished). In 1989, the Department of Turkish language and literature was opened. In the same year, the Faculty became an independent separate institution, titled Faculty of Philology (until then it operated under the Faculty of Philosophy). After being forcibly expelled from university facilities, during the makeshift home-school education period, the Department of Russian language and literature ceased to operate due to lack of interest. In contrary, despite the difficult conditions, the Department of German language and literature was opened in the academic year 1992/93.

Since 1974, Albanian studies have been conducted in two departments: the Albanian language and literature Department and the Albanian Literature and Language Department, to be merged in 2001 under the Department of Albanian language and the Department of Albanian literature.

After 2000, two new branches were opened: The Department of General and Comparative Literature in 2001/2002 (which was not accredited in the 2010 accreditation process and as such doesn't enroll new students any longer) and the Department of Journalism in 2005/2006.

In addition to basic studies, in 1970/71, postgraduate studies in the field of Linguistics and Literature were also commenced.

The first professional MA Study Program in the field translation and interpretation was accredited in 2011, followed by the BA Balkanistics Program in 2015 which was not re-accredited in the previous round of reaccreditation (2016) due to lack of professional staff in this field.

3.1. Program mission and objectives

The mission and objectives of the Faculty of Philology are in full compliance with those set by the University of Prishtina, and all programs offered at the Faculty of Philology, are designed based on the UP-issued guiding principles, relevant strategic documents and current regulations. The managerial activity and strategic planning at the Faculty of Philology is in full compliance with the UP Strategic Plan 2020-22 as well as with previous strategic plans implemented by UP.

The basic principles that lead the mission of this institution are mainly related to the provision of higher education to young people in the fields of humanities and philological sciences, as well as the training of professionals (Albanian and foreign language teachers, translators/interpreters and philologists in various scientific disciplines as in Albanian, Balkan, English, German, Romance, Oriental, Turkish Studies, and Journalism and Comparative Studies) for the needs of the society and its' institutions.

The objectives of the Faculty of Philology are:

- To enhance teaching quality at the level of higher education;

- To prepare students for the labor market;
- To ensure an integrated development of students and staff of FP;
- To ensure the rational use of financial resources;

3.2. Quality management

Standard 2.1. In relation to the Albanian Literature program, regular monthly staff meetings to discuss work and academic activity related matters, to review problems related to the learning process progression, and academic staff personal development plans and projects, are planned. Teachers report on data extracted from the self-assessment reports either for the course or for the teacher himself-herself, through evaluations which are carried out by students. Teachers are in constant electronic contact with administrative staff and students. Reporting on their scientific work is conducted regularly online (publication of CVs on the website) and through reports of evaluation commissions during the promotion process.

Standard 2.2. The teaching process is carried out in full compliance with the program and course syllabuses accredited by the Kosovo Accreditation Agency, which also foresee an evaluation process. The evaluation process and quality improvement planning are conducted in their entirety based on the Regulation on Quality Assurance and Evaluation at the University of Prishtina, No. 4/132, dated 30 December 2016 (<https://uni-pr.edu/desk/inc/media/DBB19AD0-B96D-4083-A38C-C6AC48E7FA7D.pdf>). Continuous practical and research work that teachers undertake with students leads to the constant updating of the program and syllabuses and the foreseen changes to be integrated to the extent allowed, up to 25%, according to relevant regulations. This is done in accordance with work experience, student needs and scientific developments in the field, as well as in the light of findings from evaluation processes. Updated syllabuses for each year are posted online on the Faculty website.

Standard 2.3. To ensure the quality that the program offers, the Dean's Office at the Faculty of Philology works in continuous coordination with the person in charge of the respective program (the Head of the Department or the Program Coordinator) and other responsible officials further up within the hierarchy of the University of Prishtina "Hasan Prishtina". Following a Faculty initiative, planning is usually supported by the Rectorate, always in accordance with the Regulation on Quality Assurance and Evaluation at the University of Prishtina, No. 4/132, dated 30.12.2016.

Standard 2.4. The Faculty of Philology has in place an Advisory Body that helps to streamline the study program with labor market needs. Their input for labor market needs helps us to examine the possibilities of opening new study programs, as well as to approximate learning outcomes with labor market demands. According to internal surveys, this has also had an impact on quality improvement and student achievement rates. As a result, graduates in this program will be able to practice their profession in public and private institutions in the Republic of Kosovo. Moreover, are able to use the skill of language usage for communication, translation and interpretation as part of various international, governmental and non-governmental organizations that operate in or outside Kosovo.

With regards to quality, evaluations provide an overview of the program's quality-related issues and a wider picture of its various components. Evaluations take into consideration inputs, processes and outcomes, paying special attention to student learning outcomes. Evaluation of syllabuses, evaluation of learning outcomes, evaluation of the literature and evaluation according to KAA indicators are some of the procedures that are constantly implemented. Student admission process is carried out by means of a public vacancy that is published centrally in compliance with the criteria already defined by MEST and the applicable legislation for public higher education institutions. The evaluation of candidates for enrollment in the Balkanistics program will be conducted in writing by a Professional Commission approved by the Faculty Council. Potential candidates will be tested for their knowledge of the mother tongue and a Balkan language.

Other details pertaining to student assessments by teachers are defined in course syllabuses and in agreement with the course teacher. Some of the issues are regulated through numerous BA/MA and PhD Study regulations, the SEMS Regulation and the Regulation on Quality (see: <https://www.uni-pr.edu/page.aspx?id=1,27>).

Standard 2.5. The Faculty of Philology has achieved its objectives in each round of accreditation, except for where there was not enough staff and accreditation was suspended, and has adhered to suggestions of local and international experts on quality measurement. The entire quality assurance process is supervised in a sequential form by competent academic and administrative bodies, comprising the Program Manager, the Faculty, the Office for Academic Development, the Quality Committee, the Vice Rector for Teaching and Student Affairs, the Vice Rector for Development and Quality, the UP Senate, all of them acting as filters and as quality control mechanisms to provide performance improvement and continuous compliance with standards.

Standard 2.6. Every academic year, the entire teaching process at the University of Prishtina "Hasan Prishtina" undergoes an electronic assessment with questionnaires distributed to students, through which quality measurement is conducted, complaints and requests are noted, and suggestions are given regarding academic staff performance improvements. The data generated in an electronic form by the UP Office for Academic Development, in coordination with the Vice Rector for Teaching and Student Affairs and the Vice Rector for Development and Quality, is then sent to the management of the respective faculties. In the 2018-2019 academic year, the Faculty Dean started to share assessment findings internally with the academic staff and to discuss results with them individually according to the procedures and steps laid down in the Regulation on Quality Assurance and Assessment at the UP, dated 30.12.2016 ( <https://uni-pr.edu/desk/inc/media/DBB19AD0-B96D-4083-A38C-C6AC48E7FA7D.pdf> ), and in the Guide for the Evaluation of Subjects by Students and the Use of their Results at the UP, dated 18.05.2018 (<https://www.uni-pr.edu/desk/inc/media/A7F2CD7B-D94A-415C-9820-C1CF4F1D80F3.pdf>).

Standards 2.7. The program of Albanian Literature takes into account results that come from internal quality assurance system for the further development of this study program. It includes the assessment of the results from previous generations, student workload, academic success and with special emphasis on graduate employment rate. Every report from the team of the external experts is taken into account for the further development of the program in general, the needs of the labor market ( the majority of BA graduates are employed in the position of teachers, editors, translators) and the continuous feedback from employers ( via translation practice in central and municipal level institutions) including the experience from local and international seminars, professional trainings etc.

Standards 2.8. The Albanian Literature program is based on the development strategy of the Faculty of Philology. The Faculty has developed collaborations with numerous researches, scientific and academic institutions related to the field of Literary studies. Department teachers mentor students from other departments and collaborate on research projects with them. Also, the Albanian Literature Department has established cooperation with various university centers in Europe: such as Prague, Berlin, Cosenza, Venice, Torunj, Zagreb, Poznanj, Zadar, Copenhagen, etc., where both Albanian and other Balkan literatures are studied. The faculty also has collaborations with other university centers in Europe, where there are departments of Balkan studies and Slavic studies, such as in Sofia, St. Petersburg, Belgrade, Skopje, etc., as well as with universities from Turkey. The Department of Albanian Language has established and organized in cooperation with other departments, the International Seminar on Albanian Language, Literature and Culture, in which the annual presence of international scholars and their scientific presentations in the field of Balkan studies from the region, Europe and the world, aim to promote special interest among students and scholars. The Balkan Studies program, in addition to the support from our state institutions (MEST, Rectorate), is continuously supported by the diplomatic embassies in Pristina for the realization of any kind of educational, cultural and scientific activity, while students of this department through the ERASMUS + program have continued their studies in centers European universities. Teachers have also made study visits, and lectures have been given to visiting students by visiting professors.

Standard 2.9. Fulfillment of the standards required by the Kosovo Accreditation Agency, in writing and periodically, through identification of strengths and weaknesses, periodic SERs and various reports ranging from Department to Rectorate levels, are indicators of meeting reporting requirements on overall quality. Given the program’s multidimensional nature, which covers the study of the language, literature and culture of different peoples in Kosovo and the Balkans, the program constantly adapts to updated or new publications in the field, introducing them immediately within relevant course curricula. Quality assurance mechanisms are also tailored to emerging circumstances and needs.

Periodic review of study programs is also required by the UP strategic planning documents and internal regulations, which have clearly defined time limits and evaluation procedures and are in line with MEST legislative frameworks for quality.

The Albanian Language Program can use any laboratory that is considered the property of Philology and UP, e.g. the translation department of the French Department. Work programs, such as Microsoft Office programs, are programs used in this curriculum and the University through its IT officials offers these programs licensed for use in the case of this program. The Faculty of Philology has a library that is also used by the Program students. The library is equipped with reading rooms, group-work rooms and basic literature for the disciplines included in the curriculum.
